

MILES GREENBERG

Miles Greenberg (b. 1997, Montreal) is a New York-based performance artist and sculptor. His work consists of large-scale, sensorially immersive and often site-specific environments revolving around the physical body in space. These installations are activated with often extreme durational performances that invoke the body as sculptural material. These performances are then captured in real time before the audience to generate later video works and sculptures. Rigorous and ritualistic in its methodology, Greenberg's universe relies on slowness and the decay of form to heighten the audience's sensitivities. The work follows self-contained, non-linear systems of logic that are best understood in relation to one another.

At age seventeen, Greenberg left formal education, launching himself into four years of independent research on movement and architecture. He has worked under the mentorship of Édouard Lock, Robert Wilson and Marina Abramović. Has been an artist in residence at Fountainhead Arts, Miami, FL (2023); La Manutention at Palais de Tokyo, Paris (2019); and The Watermill Center Residency, New York, NY (2017 & 2018); amongst others. Greenberg was featured on 30 Under 30 in the Art & Style Category of Forbes Magazine (2023). He has exhibited and performed internationally, at museums and galleries including The Louvre, Paris, France (2023); Neue Nationalgalerie, Berlin, Germany (2022); The New Museum, New York, NY (2023); Arsenal Contemporary, Toronto, Canada (2021); Jeffrey Deitch Gallery, New York, NY (2021); Galleria Continua, Les Moulins, France (2021); amongst others. Greenberg's work was part of the Athens Biennial, Athens, Greece (2021); BoCA, Lisbon, Portugal (2021); and the Bangkok Art Biennale, Thailand (2021).
